

Angela Coetzee

Holds a Bachelors in Applied Value & Policy studies from the University of Stellenbosch and a Diploma in Computer Science. Angela has a keen interest in developing systems to resolve issues of social justice. Her recent experience in this arena is early childhood and youth development (respectively), entrepreneurial skills and mindset development and education - she enjoys strategising and problem solving. Angela is also convicted by the power of storytelling and multimedia, especially video. It has the ability to provide profound insight and understanding to previously unknown contexts. It also has the powerful (viral) ability to get people's attention and ultimately reveal truth. Angela is moved by empowering people to think for themselves and by motivating people to live purposefully. She believes that the most powerful vehicle in this regard is access to relevant education.

Angela currently works at the Allan Gray Orbis Foundation as the Strategy Communications Manager. The Foundation is of the firm belief that high impact entrepreneurial leaders will dramatically contribute to a positive economic, social and political change in Southern Africa. The Foundation therefore identifies, selects and invests in potential greatness over the long-term through its Scholarship and Fellowship opportunities.